

ONE -DAY NATIONAL SEMINAR ON “REVISITING MEDIEVAL ASSAMESE LANGUAGE, LITERATURE AND CULTURE”

Organised by
Department of Assamese, Dibrugarh University
8th November,2019

The history of Assamese literature and language is also the history of one millennium. Since the early part of the second millennium AD, Assamese language and literature have developed and enriched in multiple phases. The efflorescence of Assamese literature and culture in the medieval period is invariably related with the impact of the bhakti movement. Except prose writings of the chronicles, other genres of literature were inspired by the bhakti movement tradition. The development of modern Assamese literature can also be traced back to the strong foundation of medieval Assamese literature. Apart from literary history, literature provides the window to understand the culture and society. The present seminar intends to revisit the medieval literary, cultural and social dimensions in the light of new researches and understandings.
